PUBLIC JUSTICE PARTNER FELLOWSHIP IN IMPACT LITIGATION

Public Justice and Georgetown University Law Center are partnering to offer a recent Georgetown Law graduate the opportunity to work for one year in Public Justice's Washington, D.C. headquarters to help develop and litigate high impact lawsuits to combat social and economic injustice, protect the Earth's sustainability, and challenge predatory corporate conduct and government abuses. The fellowship is open to Georgetown JD students graduating in 2017.

Public Justice is involved in a broader range of high-impact, cutting-edge litigation than any other public interest firm in the nation. Its lawsuits fight for consumers' and victims' rights, the environment, civil rights and civil liberties, public health and safety, workers' rights, government and corporate accountability, and the protection of the poor and powerless. Its Access to Justice Campaign works to keep the courthouse doors open for all—by battling federal preemption, unnecessary court secrecy, class action bans and abuses, unfair mandatory arbitration, and other efforts to deprive people of their day in court. For more information, please visit www.publicjustice.net.

Fellow Duties: The Fellow will work collaboratively with Public Justice's staff attorneys, outside lawyers who support Public Justice's work, and other public interest groups in order to develop and bring precedent-setting and socially significant litigation. He or she may also help to develop materials designed to educate members of the public and the bar about Public Justice's cases and the issues they represent.

Qualifications: The fellowship is open to Georgetown JD students graduating in 2017. Candidates must have

- Superb analytical, legal research, legal writing, and speaking skills;
- Litigation experience (from internships or clinics);
- An ability to juggle multiple tasks at a time and work in a fast-paced environment;
- Self-motivation and proven ability to work independently;
- An ability to work well with others and diverse groups;
- Excellent attention to detail and commitment to follow-through;
- A positive attitude and can-do personality;
- Strong organizational skills; and
- A healthy sense of outrage and desire to change the world for the better.

Salary: $53,000 plus benefits.

Application: Applications should consist of two electronic files: (1) a cover letter, resume, transcript, and references in a single .pdf file; and (2) a writing sample exhibiting persuasive legal writing in another .pdf file. Please send both files to lawfellow@publicjustice.net.

Application deadline: February 15, 2016 at 5:00pm. Interviews will be conducted shortly thereafter and a decision will be made by mid to late-March.
